Nacada to work with NGOs in fight against drugs

By EDWIN CHEBET

The National Authority for the Campaign against Alcohol and Drug Abuse (Nacada) has embarked on a program aimed at curbing drunkenness in the country. The director of the authority, Mr. Patrick Mworia, disclosed that the program would target bars, saloons, and clubs where people congregate to drink.

"We have identified some of the places where people go to drink and we are going to work with the local authorities to ensure that these places are closed down," Mworia said.

The program, which is expected to last for three months, will involve the cooperation of the police, the National Cohesion and Integration Commission, and other government agencies.

Mworia also disclosed that the program would target the youth, who are the main consumers of alcohol.

"We are going to focus on the youth, who are the main consumers of alcohol, and we are going to work with the schools and the community to educate them on the dangers of drinking," Mworia said.

Nacada has also launched a campaign to sensitize the public on the dangers of drug abuse.

"We are going to use the media to sensitize the public on the dangers of drug abuse," Mworia said.

"We want to create awareness among the public on the dangers of drug abuse, and we are going to work with the media to educate them on the dangers," Mworia said.

Nacada has also launched a program to provide treatment and rehabilitation for drug and alcohol addicts.

"We have set up centers to provide treatment and rehabilitation for drug and alcohol addicts," Mworia said.

"We want to provide a place where people can go for treatment and rehabilitation," Mworia said.

Nacada has also launched a program to provide support to families of drug and alcohol addicts.

"We have set up centers to provide support to families of drug and alcohol addicts," Mworia said.

"We want to provide support to families who are affected by drug and alcohol addiction," Mworia said.

Nacada has also launched a program to provide training for drug and alcohol counselors.

"We have set up centers to provide training for drug and alcohol counselors," Mworia said.

"We want to provide training for people who want to work as drug and alcohol counselors," Mworia said.